TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 2018

6:30 PM –8:30 PM

Scott Geiselhart tells a firefighter's story of survival and gives message of hope for PTSD and suicide victims. Hear Scott tell how he escaped near death on his road to discovery and recovery from his post-traumatic stress disorder. Scott reached out. He made the call to get better. Now he's speaking out with his life-changing story that he hopes will save another responder, so they can see color again.

Dennis Carradin from the DVFA CISM will team-up with Scott and discuss how to recognize stress in the emergency worker. He will differentiate between normal stress and critical stress. He will explore the history and science behind traumatic events, providing practical information and strategies for working man-made and natural disasters.

Scott and Dennis will emphasize the importance of needing a qualified Critical Incident Stress Management (CISM) or a Critical Incident Response (CIT) team to work along with the emergency worker. Class sponsored by M & T Bank
